Dear Secretary Cottrell:

On April 5, 2004, the Department of Telecommunications and Energy ("Department") opened an investigation into the 2003 Service Quality Reports ("SQ Reports") filed by Bay State Gas Company, Blackstone Gas Company, Boston Edison Company, Boston Gas Company, Cambridge Electric Light Company, Colonial Gas Company, Commonwealth Electric Company, Essex Gas Company, Fitchburg Gas and Electric Light Company, Massachusetts Electric Company/Nantucket Electric Company, NSTAR Gas Company, New England Gas Company, and Western Massachusetts Electric Company (collectively, the "Companies") pursuant to Service Quality Standards for Electric Distribution Companies and Local Gas Distribution Companies, D.T.E. 99-84 (June 29, 2001). The Department issued an Order of Notice requesting Comments on the Companies' SQ Reports. The Attorney General files this letter as his Comments.¹

¹ The Attorney General has filed additional Comments in docket DTE 04-13 on the SQ Report filed by Berkshire Gas Company.

Although the Department's notice states that the Department is commencing an investigation into the Companies' 2003 SQ Reports, the Department has not issued a procedural schedule or indicated any intent to conduct an evidentiary investigation into those SQ Reports. To date, the Department's investigation consists solely of soliciting comments from the general public and does not include any public or evidentiary hearings. The Electric Restructuring Act of 1997 requires the Department to oversee quality and reliability of service and to require that quality and reliability are the same as or better than levels that existed on November 1, 1997. If the Department's service quality standards are to have any meaningful effect and hold companies accountable for their service quality performance, the Department must ensure that the statistics used for comparison are accurate. The 2003 SQ Reports filed by the Companies contain only summary data, not a detailed review or analysis of compliance with performance measures. Adjudicatory proceedings would permit a more detailed review and examination of those reports.

At a minimum, the Department should conduct an investigation that allows for intervention, discovery, and adjudicatory proceedings² to obtain underlying data, supporting documentation and an understanding of the conditions under which each company operated during the year at issue. Only then can the Department determine whether a company presents statistics consistent with the Department's orders.³

The Attorney General also made several recommendations to the Department in last year's Comments on improving the service quality reporting process. The Department, to the detriment of the Commonwealth's utility consumers, did not respond to or otherwise implement any of those recommendations. The Attorney General again recommends that the Department:

1. Enhance the annual SQ reporting and review process by requiring affiliated companies to present disaggregated data to ensure that all companies are collecting data consistent with Department orders and that reporting is consistent across all companies;
2. Require a periodic independent audit of SQ data and data collection methods;
3. Require companies to provide a qualitative and quantitative analysis of annual results;
4. Require companies to file supporting documentation for each statistic, including

² Evidentiary hearings would be conducted only to the extent deemed necessary by intervening parties in the proceeding following the close of discovery.

³ Last year, the Attorney General also asked the Department to permit intervention, discovery, and adjudicatory proceedings. The Department denied that request. On September 30, 2003, the Department issued a final Order in 2002 Service Quality Reports for Electric Distribution and Local Gas Distribution Companies, D.T.E. 03-10 through D.T.E. 03-23, without holding any evidentiary hearings even though numerous parties urged the Department to conduct evidentiary hearings in some of the dockets.

data excluded or modified and the justifications for exclusions or modifications;
and

5. For those companies with insufficient historic data to establish a target for any of the Department's service quality indices that have associated penalties, assess a "deficiency/inadequacy" penalty based on an allocation of the maximum penalty for each measure for which there is not adequate data to establish benchmarks relative to the total maximum penalty, or apply an earnings sharing mechanism, or require the companies to use the statewide average standard for the years without adequate data.

The Attorney General appreciates this opportunity to comment on the Companies' 2003 SQ Reports. Recent incidents highlight the importance of adequate oversight over utility service quality to fulfill the promises made by the Electric Restructuring Act of 1997. The Attorney General offers his assistance in revising the current service quality reporting process to ensure that the Commonwealth's utility customers receive the highest quality level of service available.

Sincerely,

Wilner Borgella, Jr.
